Course Description:

Movement II has been designed to increase the actor's movement vocabulary and awareness of the physical body as a communicating instrument. In Movement II students will learn how to apply what they learned in Movement I while performing in scenes, monologues and developing their own creative work. The second year movement class will include exercises influenced by Tadashi Suzuki, Rudolf Laban, Jerzy Grotowski, and Anne Bogart.

Course Goals:

To explore the creation of original performance work

To improve posture, alignment, and centering

To gain self-knowledge through exploration and play

To develop physical rigor, stamina, and discipline

To free the expressive potential of the body by developing strength, flexibility and sensory awareness

To increase connection to the breath and voice in movement

To find connections between acting and movement

Course Requirements and Rules:

1. All classes are mandatory. Exercises, discussions, and performance work cannot be made up for the simple reason that they happen in class.
2. Don't be late! Tardiness is an unacceptable practice in this business and will severely affect your final grade.
3. All written assignments must be typed. Use a 1 inch margin and 12 point font. Staple papers longer than one page.
4. Students are responsible for making up all work missed during an absence by the next class.
5. Late work will be accepted for half credit the day after an assignment is due. Work more than one day late will not be accepted.
6. Students are required to schedule and attend rehearsals when necessary.
7. Be prepared to move during every class. Students are required to change into their theatre uniform at lunch. For more information about the departmental dress code, see the Theatre Handbook.
8. Bring water in a closed container to every class. You will want it because this class is very physical!
9. Bring a journal, notebook and pen/pencil to every class.
10. Any student caught cheating on or plagiarizing will receive a failing grade for that assignment and reported to Father Payne. Plagiarism includes pirating information from the Internet without proper documentation.

Physical Environment:

Due to the nature and content of this course the student must understand that s/he will be required to work in close physical proximity, often requiring contact, with instructor and fellow students. It is assumed that each student is comfortable with such contact unless stated otherwise.

Please inform the instructor if you have any physical problems, which may prevent you from fully participating in class work. If you believe you have a physical disability that may warrant accommodation in this class, speak with the instructor as soon as possible so that a method for addressing your needs can be developed.

Grading Scale:

100-90	A	(Excellent. Far above and beyond my expectations in both artistic and academic accomplishment).
89-80	B	(Above average. Superior achievement in both academic and artistic achievement).
79-70	C	(Average. This will put you on artistic probation).
69-60	D	(Below Average).
59 and Below	F	(Failure).

Students will receive grades for the following:

1. Written Assignments (research projects, reflective papers, critical reviews)
2. Performances (scene work, pantomimes, improvisations, juries, group projects)
3. Participation (risk-taking/initiative, preparation, Cooperation, attendance/punctuality, discipline)

Written Assignments

Critical Reviews: You will have the opportunity to see theatre by students at Duke Ellington and professional companies. After seeing these performances you will write a review. A review is “an evaluation of a performance by other people in the same field in order to maintain or enhance the quality of the work in that field.” Part of your journey at Duke Ellington is about developing what you like and don’t like about theatre so you can make career choices that you are right for you. Critical reviews are another way for you to explore your preferences, ideas, and inspirations.

Research Projects: You will be expected to work on research projects in order to learn more about the theatre. Some of these projects will be done independently and some will be done in a group. When doing research, you are expected to find a variety of sources from the internet, books, magazines, newspapers, personal interviews and encyclopedias. You will need to find these sources on your own time by visiting the library or using your home computer.

Reflective Papers: These are personal responses to an activity or experience. They can be written in the first person and are best when they are honest and personal. These papers are less formal than a critical review, but more formal than a journal.

Performances/Group Work

Improvisation: A performance with a set of simple rules, but no script.

Pantomime: The art of conveying character, actions, sense of place, etc without words.

Group Projects: This could be a project where a group collectively develops a scene based on a theme, story or poem. It could be a project that requires a group to teach a class or lead a warm-up based on a movement style you have learned in class. Creative projects are a way to apply what you have learned in a creative and fun way.

Juries: Students are expected to present their work in front of a faculty panel for feedback. Students are evaluated on their ability to apply concepts learned in movement, speech and acting classes.

Scene/Monologue Work: Sometimes students will work on scenes they have been developing in acting class. Students will learn how to use movement in a scene or monologue.

Participation

Preparation: Students should attend each class with their journal, book, notebook, and dressed in the theatre uniform. All theatre students are expected to change into their theatre uniform during lunch. In addition, students should be prepared to present any work assigned.

Team Work/Cooperation: Learning to take care of the group is an important skill in an industry where so much depends on your relationships with others. Students will be assigned group projects and class assignments and assessed on their ability to recognize and respect the value each person brings to a project.

Attendance/Punctuality: All classes are mandatory. Exercises, discussions, and performance work cannot be made up for the simple reason that they happen in class. Don't be late! Tardiness is an unacceptable practice in this business and will severely affect your final grade.

Initiative/Risk-Taking: Samuel Beckett said "No matter. Try again. Fail again. Fail better." Jump into an exercise and try even though the outcome may not be what you hoped for. You'll learn a lot from your mistakes so take advantage of every opportunity to try something new.

Discipline: Students are required to mentally and physically prepare for class upon arrival. Students should quietly stretch and rehearse until class begins. The successful actor has the discipline to prepare for an audition, rehearsal or performance without prompting from a teacher or director.

Movement II will address the following DC Theatre Standards:

HSP.1.4 Make acting choices using script analysis, character, research, reflection, and revision through the rehearsal process.

HSA.3.3 Document observations and perceptions of production elements of a play, noting mood, pacing, and use of space.

HSA.2.1 Create rehearsal schedules, set deadlines, organize priorities, and identify needs and resources when participating in the production of a play or scene.

HSA.2.3 Communicate design and directorial choices to ensemble members using leadership skills, aesthetic judgment, and problem-solving skills.

HSA.2.4 Collaborate as directors and design team to research, develop, and convey unified production concepts for a performance.

HSA.1.6 Demonstrate concepts of space, time, and energy in group improvisations.
