Infraction(s)

Checked below are the disregarded classroom rule(s) hindering participation during the lesson

- Tardiness (we need you in class as much as possible) Sleeping or head down: (you snooze, you lose)
- Food and beverage in the classroom (we don't want mice and roaches to take advantage of us)
- Chewing gum (we need to hear you clearly when you produce language)
- Littering (we don't want to live in a pigsty, so we need to respect the room and its users)
- Doing homework and/or reading materials not related to the lesson during class (come on, give us a chance!)
- Bringing no materials like the textbook or photocopies, a notebook, a pen or a pencil (you cannot go fishing without a fishing rod, you cannot learn without taking notes regularly)
- Damaging someone else's property (you can write on your pants, punch holes in your glasses, if you want, but you have to respect the school's walls, desks and materials. The community paid for them with tax money)
- Argumentative and defiant behavior towards adults and peers (downright rude)
- Disruptive (singing, dancing, walking around, talking to someone or yourself, playing drums on the desk or the neighbor's head... these are not choices you should make while in class. You are here to learn. You owe it to your future)
- Electronic devices (anything that has been given life by a battery or cable needs to be turned off. You would not want your surgeon to be engaging in texting or surfing the internet while you are having open-heart surgery. Sure we can multitask, but at what price? You end up missing important steps, like talking on the phone while baking a cake and finding out after the cake is in the oven that you forgot to put the eggs in the batter. Or maybe talking to the nurse assisting you during surgery and finding out later on that you forgot the gauze and scalpel inside the patient, no good...)
- Excessively long bathroom breaks (it should take you no more than 5 minutes, if we notice that your visits are too frequent and too long, we'll have to refer you to the nurse for further action)
- Grooming yourself or someone else (this is not a beauty parlor. You are here to cultivate your mind)
- Other _____
